

Conference Dates:
October 14-15, 2024

Virtual conference hosted by the University of Florida

Join us for the annual Housing Education and Research Association (HERA) conference, taking place virtually on October 14-15, 2024, and proudly hosted by the University of Florida. As we commemorate our 58-year history of advancing housing teaching, research, and outreach, this year's conference theme, "Innovation and Inclusion," serves as a rallying call to explore groundbreaking ideas and foster diversity within the field. This event presents a unique opportunity to engage with a diverse community of housing researchers, educators, practitioners, and Extension and outreach professionals. By embracing the principles of innovation and inclusion, we aim to spark dynamic conversations, share best practices, and propel the field of housing forward.

Our conference features several distinct tracks, each tailored to address the multifaceted challenges and opportunities within housing. The tracks are:

- Interior Design and Architecture
- Community Development
- Housing and Health
- Environmental Justice and Diversity
- Housing Finance and Economics
- Sustainable Housing
- Housing Policy
- Housing for Aging Populations
- Multifamily Housing
- Housing for Vulnerable Populations (e.g., homeless, domestic violence)
- Housing as Hospitality
- Disaster Management
- Housing Education

Please send your abstracts to Daejin Kim (daejin@outlook.com) before July 19 to be given full consideration. We expect to have reviews of the abstracts completed on or before August 16. The call for abstracts and information related to the 2024 conference is posted on the HERA website (<https://housingeducators.org/>). If you have questions or would like to learn more about HERA, please email Dr. Pamela R. Turner (prturner@uga.edu) or become a member of HERA (<https://housingeducators.org/membership/>).
