

Conference Dates:
November 17-18, 2025

Virginia Tech,
Blacksburg, VA

Join us for the annual Housing Education and Research Association (HERA) conference, taking place on November 17-18, 2025, and proudly hosted by Virginia Tech. As we celebrate 59 years of advancing housing education, research, and outreach, this year's theme—“Housing Research and Education: Now and the Future”—calls for visionary thinking and inclusive dialogue to shape the future of housing. This conference offers a vibrant platform to connect with a diverse community of housing researchers, educators, practitioners, and Extension and outreach professionals. Together, we will explore innovative solutions, share emerging trends, and promote best practices that reflect the evolving needs of individuals, families, and communities.

We invite abstract submissions that embrace innovation, foster equity, and respond to today's pressing housing challenges while envisioning a more resilient and inclusive tomorrow.

Conference Tracks:

Our conference features a variety of tracks designed to highlight the complexity and breadth of housing issues today and in the future. Tracks include:

- Interior Design and Architecture
- Community Development
- Housing and Health
- Environmental Justice and Diversity
- Housing Finance and Economics
- Sustainable Housing
- Housing Policy
- Housing for Aging Populations
- Multifamily Housing
- Housing for Vulnerable Populations (e.g., homeless, domestic violence)
- Housing as Hospitality
- Disaster Management
- Housing Education

Please send your abstracts to Daejin Kim (dk24v@fsu.edu) before April 30 to be given full consideration. The call for abstracts and information related to the 2025 conference will be posted on the HERA website (<https://housingeducators.org/>). If you have questions or would like to learn more about HERA, please email Dr. Pamela R. Turner (prturner@uga.edu)
